

Supplier Declaration / Information on the General Product Safety Regulation (GPSR)

Even though paper products are not specifically covered by the GPSR, we as retailers are obligated to ensure that the products we offer meet general safety requirements and do not contain any harmful chemicals. This obligation is derived from the General Product Safety Directive.

To our understanding, all our papers comply with the GPSR Directive. None of our papers contain any chemicals or other substances that are hazardous to health. This applies as long as the paper is used for its intended purpose, i.e., printed, written on, or painted. Of course, paper should not be consumed or used to start uncontrolled fires.

This declaration is based on the information we receive from our suppliers and paper mills.

We have received corresponding confirmations for the following papers:
